

GAS FOR HONOLULU IN THE NEAR FUTURE

W. R. Castle, who returned yesterday on the Ventura, said that he had been in the East looking into the latest wrinkles in gas manufacture. In a short time the local gas company will call for bids for the laying of the mains. They expect to lay between twelve and fifteen miles of mains for a starter. The mains will run from Palama along King to Liliha, thence to School street, then along School to Punchbowl. The main will then skirt Punchbowl to the near plains, possibly getting as far as Punahou. Two sites for the gas works are under consideration. One back of the prison and the other in Kakaako. Fuel oil will probably be used if it can be procured at reasonable rates.

Statistics in the East show that pipe and stove connections can be made at a cost of only from ten to fifteen dollars. The gas will be of high quality and may be used for lighting purposes as well as for cooking. With a Welsbach burner gas gives a better light, even, than electricity, being much easier on the eyes.

Slot machines will be probably attached to the meters, thus allowing one to buy as he uses, and also saving all trouble in collecting bills.

Breckons, on "Loyalty to Republicanism"; chairman Lorrin Andrews of the Fourth District committee on "Democratic Promises and Platform"; C. M. White on "The Party of Progress, Prosperity and Equality"; W. C. Achi on "The Republican Party and the Native Hawaiian"; A. G. M. Robertson on "The Republican Platform."

George W. Smith will probably be the presiding officer. There will be special instrumental and vocal music, and seats will be especially reserved for ladies.
